

PUTTING IDEAS INTO EFFECT

Perhaps you have cherished business plans which require the viewpoint, possibly the financial help of a resourceful bank.

The Rush County National Bank, has, in the past, assisted many business men in putting well conceived and worthy plans into effect.

While adhering always to its policy of capitalizing no business enterprises, that being quite apart from the objects of a conservative bank, its officers are always glad of an opportunity to discuss the ways in which this bank can assist in carrying forward legitimate business plans.

General Description

THIS NEW MODERN ENGLISH DICTIONARY supplies the popular demand for a RELIABLE and CONVENIENT dictionary of the English language. The highest authorities have been consulted; specialists have been brought together to make this book AUTHENTIC and COMPLETE in all respects. While based upon the ORIGINAL work of NOAH WEBSTER it is brought up to the present in every particular. All pronunciations are MODERN and are plainly indicated by phonetic spelling; the definitions are comprehensive, though concise; the type is large and clear; each page carries a running keyword which shows the first and last word defined on that particular page, thus avoiding the use of a cumbersome thumb index; instead of meaningless text pictures, the entire work is profusely illustrated with full-page color plates, monotypes and duograph charts; following the dictionary proper is a Reference Library which in itself is a complete treasury of facts for everyday use.

The world's greatest authorities on the English language are to be found in American universities and colleges, and from these sources came the knowledge set forth in the NEW DICTIONARY. The editor-in-chief, Professor Harry Thurston Peck, Ph. D., Litt. D., LL. D., has long been recognized as the foremost lexicographer and authority on languages and literature. Among the editorial contributors are Alber Stanburrough Cook, Ph. D., LL. D., professor in Yale University; John C. Rolfe, Ph. D., professor in the University of Pennsylvania and President of the American Philological Association; Professor Theodore W. Koch, Ph. D., D. Sc. of the University of Michigan; Professor Charles F. Johnson, A. M., Ph. D., of Trinity College; Professor Donald L. Clark, A. B. of DePauw University; John S. P. Tatlock, Ph. D., professor in the University of Michigan; and J. A. Joffe, A. M., Ph. D. Such an array of efficient authorities never before came together, and the grand result is a PERFECT dictionary of the English language.

CHAPTER XI. Other Relations.

It is but natural to presume after the foregoing that the affairs of the Medcrofts were under close and careful scrutiny from that confidential hour. The Odell-Carneys were conspicuously nice and agreeable to the Medcrofts and Miss Fowler. It may be said indeed that Mr. Odell-Carney went considerably out of his way to be agreeable to Mrs. Medcroft—so much so, in fact, that she made it a point to have some one else with her whenever she seemed likely to be left alone with him. The Rodneys struggled bravely and no doubt conscientiously to emulate the example set by the Odell-Carneys, but it was hardly to be expected that they could see new things through old world eyes. They grew very stiff and ceremonious—that is, the Rodney ladies did. It was their prerogative, of course. Were they not cousins of the Medcrofts?

Four or five days of uneasy pretense passed with a swiftness that irritated certain members of the party and a slowness that distressed the others. Days never were so short as those which the now recklessly infatuated Brock was spending. He was valiantly earning his way into the heart of Constance, a process that tried his patience exceedingly, for she was blithely unimpressible if one were to judge by the calmness with which she fended off the inevitable though tardy assault. She kept him at arm's length. Appearances demanded a discretion not matter how she may secretly have felt toward the good looking husband of her sister. To say that she was enjoying herself would be putting it much too tamely. She was reveling in the fun of the thing. It mattered little to her that people, her own cousins in particular, were looking upon her with cold and critical eyes. She knew down in her heart that she could throw a bomb among them at any time by the mere utterance of a single word. It mattered as little that Edith was beginning to chafe miserably under the strain of waiting and deception. The novelty had worn off for the wife of Roxbury. She was despairingly in love, and she was pining for the day to come when she could laugh again with real instead of simulated jousness.

"Connie, dear," she would lament a dozen times a day, "it's growing unbearable. Oh, how I wish the three weeks were ended. Then I could have my Roxbury, and you could have my other Roxbury, and everybody wouldn't be pitying me and eavilling at you because I'm unhappily married."

"Why do you say I could have your other Roxbury?" demanded her sister on one occasion. "You forget father expects me to marry the viscount. I—" "You are so tiresome, Connie. Don't worry me with your love affairs—I don't want to hear them. There's Mr. Brock waiting for you in the garden."

"I know it, my dear. He's been waiting for an hour. I think it is good for him to wait," said the other, with airy confidence. "What does Rox say in his letter this morning?"

"He says it will all be over in a day or two. Dear me, how I wish it were over now! I can't endure Cousin Mary's snipplishness much longer, and as for Katherine! My dear, I hate that girl!"

"She's been very nice lately, Edith—ever since Freddie dropped me so completely. By the way, Burton was telling me today that Odell-Carney had been asking her some very curious and staggering questions about Tootles and your most private affairs."

"I know, my dear," groaned Edith. "He very politely remarked to me last night that Tootles made him think very strangely of a friend of his in London. He wouldn't mention the fellow's name. He only smiled and said, 'Nevah mind, my dear, he's a c'nfend-ed handsome dog.' I daresay he meant that as a compliment for Tootles. She is pretty, don't you think so, dear?"

"She's just like you, Edith," said Constance, who understood things quite clearly.

"Then, in heaven's name, Connie, why are they staring at her so impolitely—all of them?"

"It's because she is so pretty. Goodness, Edith, don't let every little thing worry you. You'll have wrinkles and gray hairs soon enough."

"It's all very nice for you to talk," grumbled Edith. "I'm going mad with loneliness. You have a lover near you all the time—he's mad about you. What have I? I'm utterly alone. No one loves me—no, not a soul!"

"You won't let them love you, Edith," said Constance jauntily. "They all want to love you, all of them."

"I hate men," announced Mrs. Med

croft retrospectively.

Developments of a most refractory character swooped down upon them at the very end of the sojourn in Innsbruck. Every one had begun to rejoice that the fortnight was almost over and that they could go their different ways without having anything really regrettable to carry away with them. The Rodneys were going to Paris, the Medcrofts to London, the Odell-Carneys (after finding out where the others were bent) to Ostend. Freddie Ulster suddenly announced his determination to remain at the Tirol for a week or two longer. That very day he had been introduced to a Mlle. Le Brun, a fascinating young Parisian stopping at the Tirol with her mother.

All might have ended well had it not been for the unfortunate circumstance of Odell-Carney's making a purchase of the London Standard instead of the Times, as was his custom. His lamentations over this piece of stupidity were cut short by the discovery of an astonishing article upon the editorial page of the paper—an article which created within him a sense of grave perplexity. He read the headlines thrice and glanced through the text twice, neither time with any very definite idea of what he was reading. His fingers shook as he held the sheet nearer the window for a final effort to untangle the incredible thing that lay before him in simple, unimpeachable black and white.

"'Pon me word," he kept repeating to himself feebly. Then he got up and went off in extreme haste to find his wife.

"My dear," he said to her in the carriage. "I must speak with you alone." She was just starting off for a drive with Mrs. Rodney.

"Bad news, Carney?" she demanded, struck by his expression. She was following him toward a remote corner of the approach. He did not reply until they were seated much nearer to each other than was their wont.

"Read that," he said, slipping the Standard into her hands. "Wot do you think of it?"

"My dear Carney, I don't know. Would you mind telling me what I am to read?"

"The Medcroft thing. Right there."

She read the article, her husband watching her face the while. Surprise, incredulity, dismay, succeeded each other in rapid changes. She was reading in sheer amazement of the doings of Roxbury Medcroft in connection with the county council's subcommittee—in London! The story went on to relate how Medcroft, implacable leader of the opposition to the "graffers," suddenly had appeared before the committee with the most astounding figures and facts to support his charges of rottenness on the part of the "clique," his unexpected descent upon the scene had thrown the opposing leaders into a panic; every one had been led to believe that he was sojourning in the east. As a matter of fact, it was soon revealed, he had been in London secretly working on the problem for nearly three weeks, keeping discreetly under cover in order that his influence might not be thwarted. His array of facts, his bitter arraignment of the men who were trying to force the building bill through the council, staggered the whole city of London. At that writing it looked as though the bill would be overthrown, its promoters had been so completely put to rout. The committee would be compelled to take cognizance of the startling exposure. The people would demand a full thrashing out of the obnoxious deal. Roxbury Medcroft's name was on every one's lip. The Standard had profited by securing a great "beat."

The Odell-Carneys looked at each other in wonder and perplexity. "What does it mean?" asked the lady, her eyes narrowing.

"Look here, Agatha, this paper's at least two days old. Now, how the devil can Medcroft be in London and Innsbruck at the same time. He was here day before yesterday, wasn't he? I'm so c'nfended unobserving!"

"Yes, yes, he was here. And this paper—" She paused irresolutely. "Says he was there. 'Pon my word, it's most uncanny. There's some mystery here."

"I've got it, Carney! This is not Roxbury Medcroft."

"Good Gaud!"

"This explains everything. Heavens, Carney! This fellow is—is her lover! She's running about the country with him. She's—"

"Her lover? 'Gad, my dear, he may have been so at one time, but he's the other one's lover now, take my word for it. I say, 'pon my soul, this is a charming game your friends the Rodneys have let us into. They—"

"My friends! Yours, you mean!" she retorted.

"Oh, come now! But let it go at that. They know, of course that this fellow isn't her husband, and yet, by gad, Agatha, they've gone about deliberately palming him off on us as the real article. They are actually sanctioning the whole!"

"Stop a moment, Carney," interrupted his wife. "The London chap may be the fraud. Let us go slow, my dear."

"Slow? How the devil can we go slow in such fast company? No! This fellow is the fraud. And they knew it too. They all know it. They—"

"Rubbish! You forget that the whole Rodney tribe is up in arms because Medcroft is making love to his wife's sister. They're not assuming anything there, let me tell you. And he's not Edith's lover. If he's not her husband, he's playing a part that she understands and approves. And this—this, my dear Carney, may account for the imaginary orphanage of Tootles. Dear me, it's quite a tangle."

"I shall telegraph my solicitors at once for definite news. They'll know whether the real Medcroft is in London, and then, well, by Jove, Agatha,

I can't tell just wot steps I'll take in regard to these Rodneys."

He went into a long tirade against the unfortunate Seattleties, as he called them. "Understand me, Agatha, I don't blame Mrs. Medcroft. If she's having an affair with this chap and can pull the wool!"

"But she isn't having an affair with this chap," cried Mrs. Odell-Carney, her patience exhausted. "She's having an affair with a chap in London, the one who writes. Good gracious! Of course! Why, what fools we are. The real Medcroft is in London, and it is he who is writing the letters. How stupid of me!"

"Aha!" exclaimed he triumphantly. "Of course, she's getting letters from her husband. Why not? That's to be expected. But, by the everlasting shagpat, do you suppose that her husband knows she's off here with another fellow who masquerades as her husband? No!" He almost shouted it. "I've never heard of anything so brazen. 'Gad, what nerve these Americans have! Just to think of it!"

"I don't believe she is anything of the sort," declared his wife. "She's as good as gold. You can't fool me, Carney. I know women."

"Deuce take it, Agatha, so do I. And wot's more, I know men."

"They're a poor lot, the kind you know. This pseudo Medcroft is not your kind. He's a very clever chap and a gentleman."

"Now, look here, Agatha, don't imagine that I'm going to be such a cad as to turn against 'em in their hour of trial. Not I. I'm more their friend than ever. I'll help 'em to get away from here, and I'll bulldoze these Rodneys into holding their peace forever after. It's the Rodney duplicity that I can't stand."

"Shall we stay here, or shall we find an excuse to leave?" she asked pointedly.

"We'll stay long enough for me to tell the Rodneys wot I think of 'em. I'll have an answer to my dispatch by night. Then I should advise you to have a talk with Mrs. Medcroft. You've invited her to the house, you know. Tell her there can't be two Medcrofts. See wot I mean? We'll see 'em through this, but—well, you understand."

EGYPTIAN COTTON NOW GROWN IN SOUTHWEST.

Obtaining Excellent Results With Long Fiber In Arizona.

Growing of Egyptian cotton has become such an important industry in the Salt River valley, Arizona, that a ginning plant is to be established at Chandler by the time the crop is picked. An oil mill to make use of the cottonseed may be added later.

There are about 4,000 acres of the long staple cotton planted in the Salt River valley, as follows: Chandler, 1,500 acres; Mesa, 1,500 acres; Tempe and Scottsdale, 600 acres; Glendale and Phoenix, 400 acres. It is probable that the bulk of the cotton in the valley will be ginned at Chandler.

Special credit is due to the federal department of agriculture for the success that has attended the growth of this long staple cotton for the manufacture of thread.

E. W. Hudson of the department of agriculture has shown the farmers the proper way to cultivate, irrigate, and raise this crop, which last year netted some planters $100 an acre. This year the crop will be more than ten times as large, and any farmer who fails to get a maximum production will have only himself to blame.

While other parts of the country have suffered from droughts and crops have been damaged, the lands around Chandler are flourishing, because the water furnished by the government under the Roosevelt dam irrigation project never fails, and the supply in the reservoirs will last two or three years without a drop of rain.

In fact, the Salt River valley cotton grower would rather that it would not rain—and it does not except a little in the summer—because he has plenty of water in the ground whenever he needs it, and the perpetual sunshine does the rest.

The seed used by the planters is pure Egyptian cotton seed furnished by the government, and the soil and climate are apparently as well adapted to its production as that of the Nile delta, being irrigated in much the same manner.

Egyptian cotton sells on the spot for 21 to 25 cents a pound as against about 9 cents a pound for short staple cotton in other sections. The average production per acre is about three times greater in Arizona than elsewhere because of the long season and the abundance of water and sunshine.

"BIG TIM" SULLIVAN

New York Congressman Who Is "Mysteriously Missing."

© 1913, by American Press Association.

ON THE LOOKOUT FOR "BIG TIM" SULLIVAN

New York Congressman Is Mysteriously Missing.

New York, Sept. 11.—Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan's whereabouts is to all appearances as great a mystery to his relatives and friends today as at any time in the eleven days since he eluded his nurses and disappeared at night from the Westchester home of his brother, Patrick H. Sullivan.

Years of association with the big man who once ruled the Tammany politics of Manhattan below Fourteenth street, gave his close friends such confidence in his ability to look out for himself in any place and in any sort of situation, even in these days, when Big Tim is not the man in body and mind that he used to be, they insist that "he must be all right." Ex-Sheriff Foley, for example, gets a little gruff when anybody suggests that harm may have come to his old friend. "Forget that notion right away," said Big Tim. "Anybody who tries to rough house Tim had better have a life insurance policy for his family's sake. He doesn't drink a drop. He may be sick, but he can handle at least two men right now. Nobody could dope him. He knows the town as well as any man in it.

"Suicide? That's foolish. Tim's a good churchman. Besides, he knows that he has been getting better. Take it from me, the big fellow got tired of having a lot of nurses and guards around him night and day. He didn't want to make a fuss over going, so he skipped when they weren't looking."

Woman Who Confesses Thefts Says She Acted in a Trance.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Mary Faught, wife of a laborer, mother of six children, is prostrated by the investigation by the police of her thefts, which she confesses, but insists she committed when in a trance. She took household furnishings, even to taking a carpet from the floor of one house. Bedclothing was taken from several houses. This has been going on for months, and not until recently was she suspected. One woman's pocketbook, containing $40, was taken. Mrs. Faught accounted to her husband for house furnishings by saying that people for whom she did work gave them to her.

Cruiser Guards Americans.

Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, Sept. 11.—The United States cruiser Des Moines has arrived here to protect American interests. The northern part of the island is in the hands of the revolutionary leader, General Horacio Vasquez, former president of the republic, except the towns of Monte Christo and Santiago De Los Caballeros. Two Dominican gunboats which were blocking the port left Puerto Plata last night. They exchanged shots with the fort last Saturday.

INTERESTED IN CURRENCY BILL

President Impresses His Desires On Senate.

WANTS MEASURE ENACTED

Steering Committee of Senate, After a Summons to the White House, Gives It Out by Implication That Banking Bill Will Be Passed Even if Congress Has to Remain on the Job Until December Snows Are Falling.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Today noon the senate met and began a series of adjournments over to continue until after the currency bill is reported to the senate. The senate adjourned today until Monday and then, on meeting, will adjourn over until Thursday again and continue with two meetings each week, transacting no important business until currency is taken up. Many senators have left town to get a little rest during the lull.

President Wilson summoned the steering committee of the senate to the White House for the purpose of ascertaining exactly what the prospects are for the passage of the currency bill at this session. The president left no doubt in the minds of the senators of his intense earnestness and determination in this matter. When the senators left it was evident that they had made up their minds that there would have to be a sincere effort to push the bill through, even if it necessitated their remaining on the job until December. The house will pass the bill next week, but the senate will not begin active work in committee until the tariff bill is finally disposed.

The prospect is that the conferees representing the two houses of the congress will make short work of the tariff bill. The plan is to get the bill into the hands of President Wilson the latter part of next week. It will not be necessary for the president to take time to study it, for he has followed the bill with great care since the day it was introduced into the house.

Unless there shall be unexpected delay the manufacturers and merchants of the country may count on the bill going into effect Sept. 20. Apparently there will be no wrangling over the adoption of the conference committee report by the two houses. It seems extremely doubtful whether a quorum will be present in the senate when the conference report comes in. The Republican senators have abandoned the fight and very generally are leaving for home. Concurrence in the report of the conference committee will be a mere formality.

BLEW OUT FORTY FLUES

Explosion on Torpedo Boat Threw the Vessel Out of the Sea.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 11.—The United States torpedo boat Craven, en route from Charleston to Savannah, blew out forty flues, killing two men and injuring several others, off Tybee island. The dead are Chief Water Tender McCaffrey and Assistant Chief Machinist Milton.

When the explosion occurred the force of it threw the Craven entirely out of the water. It rose like a giant creature of the sea, but fortunately came down right side up. Immediately the badly damaged vessel was pointed to Tybee light. The steam tug Cynthia came up and took the disabled vessel in charge. The Craven was hurried to Fort Screven, where the hospital was put into service to receive the injured. The Craven then was brought to Savannah for repairs. There were forty men and three officers on the vessel.

CONSULAR SERVICE SHIFTS

Indiana Members Well Cared For by the President.

Washington, Sept. 11.—President Wilson has nominated Robert E. Mansfield for consul general at Vancouver, British Columbia. Mr. Mansfield formerly was secretary of the Indiana Republican state committee and for several years has held a consular position in Switzerland. His appointment as consul general at Vancouver comes as a desirable promotion. In the consular shift Roger Culver Redwell of Indiana becomes consul to Bristol, England. He also is in the service and is a Republican. John L. Griffiths of Indianapolis, consul general of London, is not disturbed and will continue to hold that office, which is the deanship of the consular corps.

A Lull in the Worth Case.

Bloomfield, Ind., Sept. 11.—The Walter P. Worth habeas corpus proceedings took an unexpected turn when Worth's attorneys filed an application for a change of venue from Judge Slinkard. The opposing counsel filed objections. This was followed by an argument at the conclusion of which Judge Slinkard granted the application for a change.

Drags Gun Through Bushes.

Washington, Ind., Sept. 11.—Thomas Bennington, aged forty-five, dragged his gun through undergrowth while hunting. The charge entered his right shoulder, death coming in a half hour.

YOUR HAIR IS TURNING GREY AND IT MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

This is Not the Time When Old Age is to be Desired

TO KEEP POPULAR KEEP YOUR APPEARANCE OF YOUTH

A young man was surprised to have his application for a position "turned down." He was better equipped for the position than the fellow who got it. He discovered that his grey hairs did it. He was "too old" looking. It's the same everywhere. There is no doubt but that grey hair does make a man look old. There is no use waiting another minute—don't lose your position or fall in getting a better one.

because you are old looking—use Hay's Hair Health now.

Those who are using Hay's Hair Health recommend it to their friends, because it is genuinely good, always restores grey hair to its natural color; destroys dandruff, keeps the scalp clean and healthy. You begin to note the difference at once. The few grey hairs disappear and never return.

Why look old when you are young? Get a bottle of Hay's Hair Health at once, start using it and see what a difference a few applications make.

Free: Sign this adv. and take it to following druggists and get a 50c. bottle of Hay's Hair Health and a 25c. cake of Harfina Soap, for 50c.; or $1.00 bottle of Hay's Hair Health and 25c. cakes of Harfina Soap Free, for $1.

FAST TEAM IS COMING SUNDAY

Superba Aggregation of Cincinnati Will be Attraction Against Arcadians Here.

MANAGEMENT AFTER PITCHER

Promises to Have One on Hand For This Game—Joe Alberts May Come.

The fans here will have a chance Sunday to see the Arcadians work against one of the fastest team in Cincinnati, the Superba team having been booked. The Superba aggregation was a member of the Spinney league this year and the locals will have a hard time winning.

As the baseball season is drawing to a close the management will from now on take on only the fastest teams and the Superba team is said to rank among the best. An effort was made to get Ambrose Puttmann's K. of C. team but it was impossible for them to come but the K of C's will probably be seen here before the season closes. The fans here are well acquainted with the kind of ball put up by the Y. M. I. team and according to John Spinney, the Superba team is even faster than the Y. M. I. aggregation.

The game Sunday promises to be one of the best of the season and a large crowd is expected. The Superbas have acquired the services of several league players since some of the minor organizations have closed and have strengthened since the Spinney league closed.

The Arcadians will use the same lineup as last Sunday with the exception of the pitcher. Efforts are being made to land a high class pitcher but so far the management has not been successful. Kuppman who was to have come here last Sunday will not be retained. An offer has been made to Joe Alberts, now with the West Covington team but as yet nothing has been heard from him. Alberts is a good man and would strengthen the team.

In case Alberts is not landed the management states that they will have a new man here regardless. Lon Jones has been doing the work but it is not thought that he can beat the Superba team. The game Sunday will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

LOCAL HORSES ON TODAY'S RACE CARD

Harrie Jones Due to Drive Harry the Ghost in Free-For-All Pace—Gowdy Mare Entered.

DUKES MIXTURE TOOK FOURTH

Rush county horses and drivers continue to cop some of the money at the state fair races. The showing yesterday however was not so good as on previous days. Harrie Jones with Dukes Mixture took fourth money in the 2:10 trot. Jones was fourth the first two heats and was fourth in the final.

This race was won by Mary Walker with Dickerson up. There were only four starters and the other horses showed too much speed for Jones. Netro with Bessie Moore finished fourth in the 2:23 pace. He was third the first heat and then dropped back to fifth in the next two heats.

Many from here went to the fair today expecting to see the Rush county drivers take several of the races. J. K. Gowdy's mare Lady Western was to start in the 2:24 trot and Harrie Jones was due to come back with Harry the Ghost in the free-for-all pace. Jones won one race this week with Harry the Ghost and stood a good chance of repeating although such horses as George Gano and others are entered. The free-for-all pace was expected to be the feature race of this afternoon's card.

SOPRANO TO LEAVE THE SINGING PARTY

Kellogg-Haines Company, Which Has Been Intact so Long, Will Have New Faces.

ACCOMPAINIST ALSO TO LEAVE

The Kellogg-Haines Singing Party, the popular grand opera company which entertained large audiences two years successively at the Rush county chautauqua, will be disorganized next season, according to an announcement made in Richmond at the conclusion of the engagement at the chautauqua there.

The soprano, who has been with the company from the beginning, five years ago, severed her connection with it after the last performance here on Sunday, and will go to New York next winter to recoup her voice through a course of treatment and training.

Miss Fahlen's continuous use of her voice, winter and summer, for five successive years, has resulted in a strain and a rest is imperative. Miss Fahlen is an accomplished musician and uses her voice with great musical finesse, but realizes the importance of saving it and therefore relinquishes her professional position for that purpose.

Mr. Breach, the accompanist, will also leave the company next spring. This will leave Mr. Goldbert, Mr. Eichenberger and Miss Montague the latter being, off the platform, the wife of the manager, Mr. Eichenberger, the tenor of the aggregation.

TREE DOCTORS ARE BUSY

Treating Many Sick Ones Since City Work in Park Done.

The State Forestry company of Indianapolis, better known as tree doctors, has been doing a big business in Rushville since repairing and rehabilitating the trees in the city park. The company's workmen saved the lives of many fine trees in the park and when the city took the initiative in this matter, many people were aroused and realized that they could save many beautiful shade trees in front of their own homes. There are not many "sick" trees in many streets that have not been treated by the doctors.
